TREVOR SAMPSON - SONGWRITER

Restoring the Sound is a project that was birthed by Trevor Sampson, a professional Gospel singer, songwriter, producer and recording engineer. Trevor, who hails from Cape Town, has a vision to empower young scholars who are vulnerable to the surroundings and circumstances to which they have fallen victim. Trevor grew up in a township and understands the challenges and difficulties of township life. Many youngsters, even after being exposed to good role models, fall prey to the strong influence of gangsterism and all the baggage that comes with it. As many of these kids grow up in dysfunctional families, the need to belong is great and most gangs fulfill that need. In the gangs, these kids get shown street survival skills of all sorts. Obviously, power and control plays a big role in the process, so at a very early age most of these children get in conflict with the law and one thing leads to another. The Arts, and in particular Music, play a major part in our culture and therefore are seen as a powerful communicative tool. Trevor sees it not only as a tool but also a weapon if used and channeled correctly. His intention is to equip the youngsters with musical instruments which he collects through his network of friends in organizations abroad, teach them how to use these instruments in a proper way to better themselves and, in so doing, better their community.
